

OUTSOURCED DATA PROTECTION OFFICER

Learn how we can help you understand the GDPR

GDPR

The accountability principle of the GDPR changes the effort associated with compliance. Prior to the GDPR, an organisation was assumed to be compliant until evidence of non-compliance was identified. The implication of the GDPR's accountability principle is that unless you can demonstrate compliance you are not compliant.

The Solution

GDPR

Appointing an individual to be responsible for monitoring and assessing compliance on an ongoing basis is necessary for all organisations. For some organisations, it is mandatory that they appoint a Data Protection Officer (DPO) to this role, other organisations choose to appoint a DPO in recognition of the importance of meeting the compliance obligations.

Many organisations will consider outsourcing the responsibilities of a DPO to privacy experts. XpertDPO offers a wide range of services to support or carry out the DPO role as well as ensuring organisations are well informed and up to date on data protection matters.

Why Outsource your DPO role?

REDUCED COSTS

Reduce the cost associated with a DPO.

CONFIDENCE

Have confidence that you can access leading data protection experts.

AVOID

Avoid the DPO becoming a key person dependency.

SPECIALISED CONSULTANTS

Easy access to specialised consultants who know your organisation and will quickly deal with any data breach, subject access request or other impacting event.

INDEPENDENCE

Meet the independence requirements for the DPO role.

How can XpertDPO help?

We aim to give clients assurance on data protection concerns and allow them to focus on their core activities.

XpertDPO can provide the expertise required to fulfil this role and will work closely with your management team providing advice on GDPR and oversight of your compliance process. Your outsourced DPO will get to know your business and answer data protection questions relating to day to day activities to protect data subjects and your organisation from unnecessary harm.

We also know that there is much more to responding to rules and regulations than just compliance with the law. Not only can we support you in complying with the necessary legal requirements but we can also help you to transform the regulatory constraints of the GDPR into opportunities, ensuring that your compliance journey has a positive impact upon your existing economic and organisational models.
